BRIEF REVIEW.

Interesting Relics of Cliff Dwellers.

Every year investigators are adding to the world's store of knowledge of the cliff dwellers, who once inhabited the southwestern portion of this continent. Dr. P. W. Schuessler, while explor-

...ing the Puye and Shufinne... ings, a little less than 30 miles north ... Santa Fe, made a peculiar discovery re... cently. He noticed a spot in the wall ... of different color than that around it ... and investigated. With a pocket knife ... he dug into the soft stone and discov... ered a hole five inches in diameter and ... twelve inches deep, partly filled with ... mud in which was imbedded a stick on ... which was mounted a face of obsidian ... that looked like a doll's head. In the ... same hole with the doll was a small but ... highly polished turquois. Dr. Schues... sler investigated further. He found ... another hole of similar character, in ... which there were also a doll and a tur... quoise. After further search two more ... of these sealed openings were found, ... each of which contained a doll and a ... turquoise. One of these holes contained ... a piece of petrified resin, in which tooth ... marks indicated that it had been used ... much as the chewing gum of today is ... used. Under pressure from the fingers ... the resin powdered into dust. The ... probabilities are that the doll heads ... were idols, but the significance of bury... ing them in the mesa walls and the ... presence of the turquoise are, of course, ... inexplicable.

Milking Cows By Eletricity.

In the newly invented apparatus for milking cows by electricity rubber hoods are attached to the udder of the cow. These hoods are connected with a vessel for receiving the milk by means of a rubber tube, from which the air is exhausted by means of the electrical device. It is claimed that the suction thus secured resembles very closely the sucking of a calf, and that for this reason the cow "lets down" her milk more freely than when milked by hand. It is also claimed that absolute cleanliness of the milk may be secured when this method of milking is employed.

Religions in Russia.

To many the nature of Russia's religion is only vaguely understood. Christianity was introduced into the country in the ninth century. The Established Church, says our authority, is identical in doctrine with the Greek Church. The liturgy, which is read in Slavonic, is the one used originally by the Church at Constantinople. Until recently, any form of dissent was not tolerated. Under the ...ws of Alexander II, Catholics and Protestants have equal rights with members of the Established Church.

Novel Heating System.

A cheap and novel plan for heating houses is being put in operation at Glenwood Springs, Col. Water from the famous boiling springs is being piped into town, and so great is the supply that houses can be heated at a very small expense.

So confident are the members of the Ahearn family of 925 Pine street, San Francisco, that the body recovered from the Truckee river a few days ago is that of Michael Ahearn, the head of the family, that they have arranged for its shipment to that city, where it will be buried.

George L. Brown, a farmer, 82 years of age, dropped dead while working in the garden on his place at Elmhurst. Two neighbors, Mrs. Judson and Mrs. Godfrey, saw him fall, but found that he had passed away before they could reach his side. Brown was a veteran of the Civil War.

Louis Gibbons, a native of Reliance, Ohio, aged 45 years, who is a bridge carpenter employed by the Southern Pacific Company, was killed by a heavy piece of timber. One of the most important classical courses ever given at the University of California will be conducted during the fall term with a graduate class by Professor Edward Bull Clapp, head of the Greek department. It is proposed to give intensive study to the "Griechisches Lesebuch" of Wilamowitz-Moellendorff, with the view of obtaining some idea of the wide range and importance of the permanent contributions of the Greek mind to modern thought.

Two cases of incendiarism occurred in one night at Salinas, and in both instances the offenders were caught in the act. The first attempt was made about 10 o'clock and resulted in the destruction of a cottage owned by Joseph Snyder, valued at $1000 and fully insured. The second attempt was in the rear of Hale's dry goods store. This was extinguished without much damage. The men arrested are Charles T. Waller and George Hadlow.

The Board of Town Trustees, Redwood City, will soon call an election to vote on the proposition of bonding the city for $100,000. A mass meeting will be called and a thorough campaign planned for the carrying of the bonds. The idea of the new improvement is to bituminize all central streets and improve all side streets. The part of the city known as Greater Redwood will be improved by the extending of water mains, sewering and lighting. This improvement will cost $35,000.

George Minkler, a trusted employe of the Sunset Telephone Company and a well-known resident of San Jose, has received injuries while attending to his duties which may prove fatal. Minkler is a lineman in charge of the wires running between Almaden and San Jose. While clearing the wires from some eucalyptus trees, a branch gave way and the young man fell a distance of twenty-two feet striking on his left side. His shoulder was dislocated and his hip and left forearm and leg badly fractured. He is at St. Luke's Hospital in a very precarious condition.

The old mining town of Big Oak Flat was almost wiped out of existence by a fire which originated in a lodging-house conducted by W. H. Dodge. The flames rapidly spread to the adjoining buildings, destroying the Marconi dwellings and saloon, the Cobden building, the Big Oak Flat Hotel, Jordan's store and dwelling, the Breen Hotel and several other buildings. The origin of the fire is a mystery, but it is supposed to be of incendiary origin, several mysterious fires having occurred lately. Owing to the great mining activity, building will be resumed as soon as the property losses are adjusted.

A Retraction.

In the May number of The Ladies Home Journal we published, in the article entitled "The 'Patent-Medicine' Curse" analysis of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription in which that preparation was represented as containing, among other ingredients, tincture of digitalis tincture of opium, and alcohol. Immidiately upon publication of the number a suit for damage was instituted by The R. V. Pierce Medical Co. of Buffalo N. Y. proprietors of the preparation in question, against The Curtis Publishing Company, based upon the claim that none of the three ingredients was contained in the medicine.

Upon the filing of the suit, we immediately looked into the published analysis. It appears that this particular analysis had been made. if made at all, fully twenty-five years ago. We thereupon employed three leading chemists in different cities to make an analysis of the preparation from bottles bought in the open market. These analysis one and all, now show to us conclusively that not a single one of the ingredients mentioned by us in the analysis duoted that is, either digitalis opium or alcohol was contained in the bottles analyzed. We then--the President of this Company and the writer personally—visited The R. V. Pierce Medical Company at Buffalo and were there convinced that ther officers of the Company were absolutely truthful in their claim that not one of these injurious ingredients was contained in "Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

Under these circumstances it is now perfectly plain to us that this magazine was unintentionally but neverless absolutely misled in making the original statement, and we hereby, of our own volition, make this unqualified acknowledgment of our mistake to the R. V. Pierce Medical Company and to our readers

The mistake was honestly made, but it was a mistake.

DEAD MAN WAS FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE

HE LIVED ON A RANCH IN THE HILLS ABOVE GLEN ELLEN.

It has just become known that a man whose body was shipped from Santa Rosa last week, was, during life, a fugitive from justice. He had been living under an assumed name on a little ranch in the hills near Glen Ellen, and there death overtook him.

The man's true name was Luther Ellsworth Turner, but to those who chanced to meet him in this country he was "Luther E. Perry." He arrived here last April, and since that time has regularly received remittances from his eastern relatives. With his wife he rented a small ranch on an unfrequented road about three miles east of Glen Ellen. Here

Business Property Changes Hands.

Perhaps no one has greater confidence in the future of Sonoma than our enterprising merchant, Chas. Dal Poggetto, who is always ready to back his faith with gold coin. Mr. Dal Poggetto is a far-seeing man and knows the value of property A few months ago he purchased the Shoults' home on 2nd street East and previous to that a valuable block of land on Broadway.

His latest purchase, is the McMackin property adjoining his own near the Post Office. He will erect a fine modern two story stone structure and plans will be drawn to suit the tenant who has agreed to take a long lease of the property.

The building will be a decided improvement to that part of town and with the fine new Castex building will help to make a very substantial row of stone structures.

Agua Caliente Springs Resort.

Never before in the history of this famous Agua Caliente Springs has there been so many and such valuable improvements made as has been done since the property has been owned by Mr. Richards, one of the most enterprising summer resort proprietors in California.

The many improvements he has made in and about the Springs and Hotel would make a long list. The hotel has entertained an average of four hundred guests for the past few months and they show no sign of diminishing.

His latest innovation is great and very popular. He has installed a fine modern gas plant at the baths and swimming tank which are now open every night to accommodate the large crowd of people who eagerly seek the baths for pleasure and their wonderful health giv...

BERKELEY G. A. R. VISIT IN GLEN ELLEN

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN POST, NO. 88, AND W. R. C. NO. 135, VISIT "CASA WAGNER"

Lookout Mountain Post, No. 88, of Berkeley and Woman's Relief Corps, No. 135, of that Post, paid a fraternal visit to their former Commander and President, General Theo. Wagner and Mrs. Wagner at "Casa Wagner," near Glen Ellen, on Sunday, July 31. There were about fifteen comrades and nine members of the Relief Corps in the party. Commander Marshall Kearns, of Berkeley Post, has a ranch near Napa and he and his wife drove over from there and joined the party at "Casa Wagner". Some of the old Vets residing in the vicinity of Glen Ellen participated.

The party on arrival at Glen Ellen were taken on board of various vehicles, from the neighborhood of "Casa Wagner," and mine host Monahan's bus of Glen Ellen, and conveyed to "Casa Wagner" where simple refreshments awaited them, supplemented by baskets provided by the W.R.C. They sang various patriotic songs to the accompaniment of the organ, by Miss Emily Crepin, and cornet and violin by Mr. Herman Schieck. Mr. and Mrs. Allen and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Boesch and others assisted in entertaining the Grand Army guests. It was rather pathetic to see these old men meet and recount their old experiences and through all their remarks there flowed a vein of unostentatious patriotism and hope for the country's future.

General Wagner's place was gayly decorated with American flags and bunting and the little cannon saluted the Veterans on their entrance and departure.

In some feeling remarks Post Commander Wagner referred to absent comrades, some of whom had been summonded by the last roll call. He explained what the Flag meant to old soldiers, when, in the din of battle and nothing else could be heard, their eyes were always bent upon their flag and that the only command repeated by all was, "Close up" and that they always closed up to the Flag. He said they were dropping out very fast now and closing up their fast diminishing rank with their eyes as of yore, on the flag they loved so well. The guests departed to the strains of "Retreat!" blown on the bugle by Herman Schieck and a parting salute from the cannon.

"About four months ago I wrote to you for advice, and you very kindly advised me what to take," writes Mrs. Ida May Chandler, of Sandusky, Ind. "I did as you directed. At the time I was hardly able to be up at all, and what I suffered for four years God alone knows. I was nothing but a walking skeleton, but now I feel like a new woman. I would have written before but was waiting to see how I would get along. Dear Doctor, I am so thankful to you and to God for your 'Favorite Prescription' and for the fatherly letter you wrote me. Had it not been for you I would have been in my grave to-day, but, instead, am on the road to recovery. Maybe this will influence some other poor suffering woman to come to you for advice."

CROSSPATCH FAMILY

[Original.]

For hundreds of years our family have been proud of our name, Leicester, claiming descent from the Leicester family whose best known representative was the favorite of Queen Elizabeth. I was baptized Algernon Cecil.

I was introduced to a girl whose name I did not catch. If I had caught it I doubt that I should so readily have fallen in love with her. When I learned that it was the singular and to her entirely inappropriate name of Crosspatch I left her for a week, at the end of which time I called on her again, for I found it impossible to drive her out of my mind.

"How did it happen," I asked her, "that you, the perfection of amiability, were born under such a name?"

"It is a corruption," she said, "of Grossebach. The change came many generations ago, and my grandfather, who studied the family history, professed to have discovered that it was made on account of the bravery of one of our ancestors, a common soldier of Cromwell's army, who in face of a galling fire crossed a field or patch of ground, carrying ammunition to a force beleaguered by the Cavaliers. His comrades dubbed him Crosspatch, and he, being proud of his deed, retained it."

"H'm!" I muttered to myself. "Doubtless my ancestors were among the Cavaliers who opposed the low bred Puritans."

Despite her name, I loved Miss Crosspatch so dearly that I could not give her up, and, as my love was returned, we became engaged. Besides my love there was another reason for my marriage—I longed to regain some of the social prominence for myself and my descendants of the ancient Leicesters, and Miss Crosspatch was possessed of an enormous fortune left her by this same grandfather who had discovered the origin of the name. After all, what difference would it make? The wife assumes the husband's name, and she and our children would be Leicesters. I had a fancy that the oldest son should have for his surname his mother's family name, but in this case I resolved that no son of mine should be christened Crosspatch Leicester. He should be named for me, Algernon Cecil. I would see that he inherited the bulk of his mother's fortune, and in this way I would re-establish the Leicester family.

There was a brilliant wedding at which I drank a trifle too much wine and boasted that as one of our family had once been the favorite of a queen now it would become the favorite of the upper ten thousand of the United States. We departed on our wedding trip amid the usual shower of rice, and on our return I settled myself down to enjoy my newly acquired fortune. I had been at home but a few days before the solicitor for the Crosspatch millions wrote me saying that he would like to see me in the city. I went to him and was shown into his private office.

"I have sent for you," he said, "that a very important matter may be settled—the ownership of the Crosspatch property."

"My dear sir," I replied, "the property belongs to my wife."

"There is a condition attached to her grandfather's will."

"A condition! What is it?"

"That her husband assume the name of Crosspatch and the children if any resulting from the marriage only inherit under that name. Simon Crosspatch, having no children except your wife's father, and he dying during her infancy with no other issue, left the property to her with the above named condition. He was very proud of the manner in which the name originated and desired to perpetuate the family under it."

"And I," said I, "am desirous of perpetuating the family under the name of Leicester."

"The family can only inherit by assuming the name of Crosspatch. In case you decline to do so, the will states that the property is to go to the endowment of an institution to be known as the Crosspatch university."

"My wife never told me this," I exclaimed wrathfully.

"For the very good reason that her grandfather stipulated in his will that she was not to be informed of it except through her husband. He desired not to stand in the way of her marriage. He preferred to leave it to her husband to accept the terms or resign the fortune. But in case you decline there is an annuity settled on her of $1,500 a year to keep her from want."

I asked for the time allowed me by the will in which to make my decision and was informed that it was a month. I was too much disgruntled to return to my wife for a week, but by that time had decided to accept the name and the fortune. My wife, who was and is amiability itself, bore with my irritation and disappointment. I declared that I would break the will and spent months trying to find a loophole by which I could do so. Indeed I made so much fuss that the matter got out, and it was commonly reported that that ill natured Leicester was ill treating his good natured wife, who deserved a better husband. Finally my grumblings died away, and I peaceably took possession of my wife's fortune.

And now I am known as old Crosspatch, my wife as Mrs. Crosspatch, and I have ten children all Crosspatches. What we would do with such a name were it not for our wealth and the popularity of my wife and our sons and daughters I don't know. As it is, all except me are known, respected and beloved under the name of the Crosspatch family.

DEAD MAN WAS FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE

HE LIVED ON A RANCH IN THE HILLS ABOVE GLEN ELLEN.

It has just become known that a man whose body was shipped from Santa Rosa last week, was, during life, a fugitive from justice. He had been living under an assumed name on a little ranch in the hills near Glen Ellen, and there death overtook him.

The man's true name was Luther Ellsworth Turner, but to those who chanced to meet him in this country he was "Luther E. Perry." He arrived here last April, and since that time has regularly received remittances from his eastern relatives. With his wife he rented a small ranch on an unfrequented road about three miles east of Glen Ellen. Here he spent the money forwarded him in fixing up his ranch. Poultry and pigeons were his hobby and at the time of his death he had incubators, brooders and poultry and pigeons on hand valued at more than $1,500. The crime which drove him to seclusion in the California hills is said to have brought the dead man and his brother between $40,000 and $50,000, committed in Fredericksburg, Md.

Sonoma Water Works

The great improvements in the Sonoma Water Works are about completed and in a very few weeks will be in good working order insuring a bountiful supply of pure fresh water to the inhabitants of Sonoma.

The Sonoma Saloon

P. Balette and family, former residents of Napa where Mr. Balette was engaged in business have moved to Sonoma to reside permanently. Mr. Balette has leased the corner store room in the Weyl Building at the N. W. corner of the plaza and has opened a saloon.

He carries a full line of pure wet goods and good cigars. Mr. B. is well known in San Francisco, Napa and Sonoma and will no doubt succeed in his new enterprise. When dry give him a call.

Business Property Changes Hands.

Perhaps no one has greater confidence in the future of Sonoma than our enterprising merchant, Chas. Dal Poggetto, who is always ready to back his faith with gold coin. Mr. Dal Poggetto is a far-seeing man and knows the value of property A few months ago he purchased the Shoults' home on 2nd street East and previous to that a valuable block of land on Broadway.

His latest purchase, is the McMackin property adjoining his own near the Post Office. He will erect a fine modern two story stone structure and plans will be drawn to suit the tenant who has agreed to take a long lease of the property.

The building will be a decided improvement to that part of town and with the fine new Castex building will help to make a very substantial row of stone structures.

Adelaide Hope Hyde.

The glad tidings reached Sonoma in a letter from Berlin, Germany, that Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hyde, nee Hope, were blessed with a bright little baby girl, born to them in the far away fatherland on July 12.

Mother and daughter are progressing nicely. Their host of friends here, extend hearty congratulations and best wishes. When little Miss Adelaide Hope Hyde escorts her papa and mama back to the historic old town, she and they will receive a hearty welcome.

Sonoma's Famous Products

On Tuesday last, a shipment of brandy from the bonded warehouse here was made to Philadelphia Penn.

U. S. warehouse keeper McGimsey thinks that more business has been done through the warehouse here during the past month than has been done in the same period for many years past.

Mrs. Woodworth Dead

Much sympathy is felt with this family who have lost so many dear ones early in life under discouraging circumstances.

The members of Temple Lodge, No. 14 of Sonoma are very happy these days over the fact that the mortgage has been paid off and the lodge is entirely free from debt.

The fraternity is in a very satisfactory condition and is enjoying a steady growth.

Sick Women are Invited to Consult Doctor Pierce by Letter Free

Free medical advice is offered by many who are not qualified to practice medicine, and whose "medical" advice is therefore worse than worthless, because it is dangerous. Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter is not to be confounded with spurious offers of free medical advice. As chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., assisted by his medical staff of nearly a score of physicians, Dr. R. V. Pierce has in a little more than thirty years treated and cured hundreds of thousands of weak and sick women.

The most sensitive can address Dr. Pierce in perfect freedom. All letters are held as strictly private, and the written confidences of women are guarded by the same strict professional privacy observed by Dr. Pierce and his staff in personal consultations with weak and sick women at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"About four months ago I wrote to you for advice, and you very kindly advised me what to take," writes Mrs. Ida May Chandler, of Sandusky, Ind. "I did as you directed. At the time I was hardly able to be up at all, and what I suffered for four years God alone knows. I was nothing but a walking skeleton, but now I feel like a new woman. I would have written before but was waiting to see how I would get along. Dear Doctor, I am so thankful to you and to God for your 'Favorite Prescription' and for the fatherly letter you wrote me. Had it not been for you I would have been in my grave to-day, but, instead, am on the road to recovery. Maybe this will influence some other poor suffering woman to come to you for advice."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Sometimes a dealer will offer a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" as "just as good." Judged by its record of cures of womanly ills, there is no other medicine just as good as "Favorite Prescription."

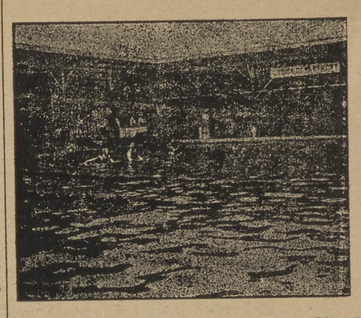

Agua Caliente Springs Resort.

Never before in the history of this famous Agua Caliente Springs has there been so many and such valuable improvements made as has been done since the property has been owned by Mr. Richards, one of the most enterprising summer resort proprietors in California.

The many improvements he has made in and about the Springs and Hotel would make a long list. The hotel has entertained an average of four hundred guests for the past few months and they show no sign of diminishing.

His latest innovation is great and very popular. He has installed a fine modern gas plant at the baths and swimming tank which are now open every night to accommodate the large crowd of people who eagerly seek the baths for pleasure and their wonderful health giving qualities.

Those who have visited the baths and swimming tank at night, consider it a rare pleasure. "Light as day and simply great," is the remark heard on all sides by patrons of the baths.

The Convention was marked with great enthusiasm and harmony and the party feels much encouraged over the prospects of success.

A serious grass fire burned a large area of the Snyder place below town Wednesday. Stonetti Bros. have the place leased as a dairy and the loss of hay and pasture will be quite serious.

Paul Perazzo Hurt

Paul Perazzo, a former Sonoma boy, fell down an elevator shaft, a distance of 32 feet in a Market St. building Thursday of last week and came near meeting death. Luckily the fall was broken but no bones were broken.

Perazzo was taken to the Emergency Hospital immediately and soon recovered consciousness. He is at work again now but says he feels as though he had passed through a cyclone.

BERKELEY G. A. R. VISIT IN GLEN ELLEN

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN POST, NO. 88, AND W. R. C. NO. 135, VISIT "CASA WAGNER"

Lookout Mountain Post, No. 88, of Berkeley and Woman's Relief Corps, No. 135, of that Post, paid a fraternal visit to their former Commander and President, General Theo. Wagner and Mrs. Wagner at "Casa Wagner," near Glen Ellen, on Sunday, July 31. There were about fifteen comrades and nine members of the Relief Corps in the party. Commander Marshall Kearns, of Berkeley Post, has a ranch near Napa and he and his wife drove over from there and joined the party at "Casa Wagner". Some of the old Vets residing in the vicinity of Glen Ellen participated.

The party on arrival at Glen Ellen were taken on board of various vehicles, from the neighborhood of "Casa Wagner," and mine host Monahan's bus of Glen Ellen, and conveyed to "Casa Wagner" where simple refreshments awaited them, supplemented by baskets provided by the W.R.C. They sang various patriotic songs to the accompaniment of the organ, by Miss Emily Crepin, and cornet and violin by Mr. Herman Schieck. Mr. and Mrs. Allen and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Boesch and others assisted in entertaining the Grand Army guests. It was rather pathetic to see these old men meet and recount their old experiences and through all their remarks there flowed a vein of unostentatious patriotism and hope for the country's future.

General Wagner's place was gayly decorated with American flags and bunting and the little cannon saluted the Veterans on their entrance and departure.

In some feeling remarks Post Commander Wagner referred to absent comrades, some of whom had been summonded by the last roll call. He explained what the Flag meant to old soldiers, when, in the din of battle and nothing else could be heard, their eyes were always bent upon their flag and that the only command repeated by all was, "Close up" and that they always closed up to the Flag. He said they were dropping out very fast now and closing up their fast diminishing rank with their eyes as of yore, on the flag they loved so well. The guests departed to the strains of "Retreat!" blown on the bugle by Herman Schieck and a parting salute from the cannon.

THE SKYLARK'S SONG

AN ASTONISHING FEAT FROM MANY POINTS OF VIEW.

Not Alone Is It a Wonder of Melody, Tone and Quality, but Its Volume Is Astounding and Its Circumstance of Utterance a Physical Marvel.

For its music alone the song of the lark is almost the most melodious of any bird's. The tone and quality are admirable and the volume of sound astonishing. It can be heard clearly when the lark has mounted, as it sometimes does, beyond recognition by normal eyesight. The volume of sound is also most noticeable when a caged lark is heard, singing as it does far nearer to the hearer than the bird in the sky. But apart from the quality and music of the song the circumstances in which it is uttered render it an astonishing feat.

Every other considerable songster is quite aware that singing entails much physical effort. Consequently it takes care to secure a good platform to sing from. A thrush or a blackbird or a robin nearly always selects a top shoot or projecting bough, preferably a d one, on which it sits and sings, n moving its position, and without objects round it to hinder the carry o its voice. The blackcap nd nightin gale and some of the warblers sit in somebody a bush to sing, but the whitethroat and even the hedge sparrow choose the topmost twig. The whitethroat sometimes sings when descending, and some of the pipits and the wood lark do the same, the meadow pipit singing a feeble little song as it makes a short ascent and descent.

But to the strain on its lungs of long protracted song the lark adds the great muscular exertion of a steady upward flight, usually carried out not by scaling the air in gentle circles, as in the soaring of the larger birds, but by a vertical climb made by the incessant beating of its wings. Wordsworth's recognition of it as the Type of the wise who soar, but never roam,

True to the kindred points of heaven and home, is often almost literally correct. After two or three spirals the bird goes up almost as if it were drawn heavenward by a cord, and then, closing its wings, descends like a falling stone to the very point from which it rose. The strain upon the muscles and the lungs would be great if during all this time it were silent. But it chooses to add to the exertion of soaring that of pouring forth a continuous flood of sweet notes with no intermissions or breaks whatever.

A lark will soar and sing during a space of ten minutes consecutively. The rapidity with which the pectoral muscles are working during this period may be judged from the fact that the bird makes not less than from five to six beats of the wing per second. The beats are usually in sets of from three to five, the bird pausing for a moment as if to take a fresh start after the interval. When chased by the merlin falcon, skylarks make their finest exhibitions of flight, ascending into the air to heights which have been estimated as being not less than a thousand feet. Sometimes the bird uses the same means of ascent as when it is soaring and singing, rising vertically by incessant beats of the wing. In the language of the falconer, these are termed "mounting" larks, and their object is to outfly the hawk directly, shaking off its pursuit during the ascent. Others prefer to rise by flying in a spiral, which the falcon imitates.

Mr. E. B. Michell, in his volume on "The Art and Practice of Hawking," says: "The one bird may be circling from right to left and the other from left to right, and neither seems to guide the direction of its rings by any reference to those which the other is making. It is now a struggle to see which can get up fastest, and it is astonishing to see to what a height such flights will sometimes reach. As soon as a lark is 800 feet high it can drop, almost like a stone, into any cover within a radius of 200 yards from the spot just under it, allowance being made for the effect of the wind. But 800 feet is not high for a ringing flight; at least there is nothing unusual about it. A lark does not go out of sight until it is much above that height, and it is no extraordinary thing for it to do this." The lark seldom sings late in the day. It can be tempted to rise in a burst of melody for one final ascent if the evening sun breaks through the clouds after rain, but as a rule it is silent long before the sun has descended into the western bed of cloud. We have Milton's authority that it is up and in song before dawn. But those who have Heard the lark begin its flight

And singing startle the dull night

are not easily found, though in the height of the pairing time it may very possibly be beforehand with aurora in greeting its mate. But as a rule the lark sings at sunrise, as the ortolan eats. Darkness depresses it and keeps it mute, but a gleam of sun is the signal for it to ascend. Obviously rain would make it most difficult for it to soar, both by adding to the weight of its body from the moisture caught in the feathers and by wetting the webs of the pinions, so the lark only soars in the dry as a rule. It is one of the most sensitive and best of nature's weather gauges, for when the larks begin to sing it is almost certain that rain has ceased for some time, if not for the day. It is the cock lark which sings. William Cobbett noted that one was just soaring and beginning to sing when the hen flew up and evidently told him to stop, for she fetched him down again—"an instance," says Cobbett, "of that petticoat government which is universal."—London Standard.

NEW SHORT STORIES

No Such Word.

The talk about Sir Henry Irving's retirement from the stage reminds me to tell of an incident of his first visit to Chicago. Slason Thompson and I attended the performance of "Richelieu." Just in front of us sat a man who in his enthusiastic admiration of both the play and the player became somewhat of a nuisance by reason of his frequent commendatory remarks.

"What a beautiful thought!" he would exclaim to the woman beside him, or, "Isn't that wonderful acting?"

When Irving uttered the lines, "In the lexicon of youth, which fate reserves for a bright manhood, there is no such word as fail," he drew the last word out to an almost ridiculous length.

"Ah!" sighed our enthusiastic neighbor. "How true! How true!"

"So it is," said Thompson to me. "In the lexicon of youth and, I might add, in all the lexicons from Johnson to Webster and Worcester there is no such word as 'fa-a-a-a-ail.'"

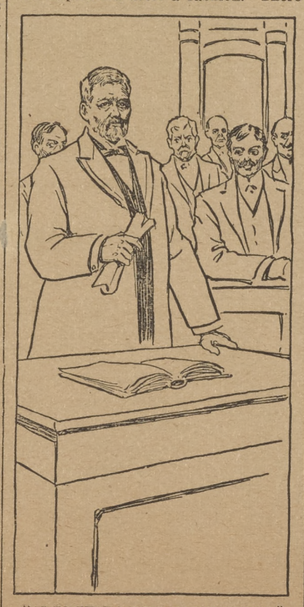

The enthusiastic interrupter didn't peep again during the performance.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Senator Wouldn't Prophesy.

Senator Allison's wariness of direct statements is proverbial among public men in Washington. The anecdote about a friend winning a wager of a cigar from an Iowan that the senator would not state in so many words that a flock of sheep approaching had been sheared has become familiar.

"They seem to be sheared on this side," the senator is quoted as having said.

Recently in the senate this anecdote was duplicated after a fashion. There had been discussion about the wisdom of appropriating a lump sum annually for keeping the sidewalks and streets of Washington free from snow and ice. Mr. Allison was drawn into the discussion.

"AS TO THAT I WILL NOT PROPHESY"

"Snow has been falling on the streets and sidewalks of Washington for many years past," observed Mr. Allison.

"And will for many years to come," interposed Senator Spooner.

"As to that," rejoined Senator Allison, "I will not prophesy."—Washington Post.

Story of Lafe Pence.

The Congressional Record, though containing columns of dull and uninteresting pages, catches an anecdote sometimes which was not deleted when the official notes went to the printer. There is the one which the colleagues of Representative Livingston of Georgia like to tell on him. It happened when Lafe Pence was in congress. Near the close of a short session, when the legislative mills were grinding exceedingly fast, Livingston was in the midst of an impassioned partisan speech. He had about reached a climax and raising his voice to a high pitch shrieked: "Yes, Mr. Speaker, I am tired of demagogy. I will have nothing to do with it!"

Then he paused to catch his breath, but before he could finish his period Lafe Pence drawled, "Mr. Speaker, have the gentleman sworn before he changes his mind."

An Appropriate Prayer.

The Rev. John Robertson of Glasgow told Mr. Spurgeon about some of the difficulties that he had to surmount when he commenced preaching. For example, one worthy office bearer came to church and seated himself before the minister with one finger in each ear.

"There was a nice thing for a young preacher! What would you have done?"

"I should have prayed"— began Mr. Spurgeon.

"And," said Mr. Robertson, "I got my face very solemn, for I expected something very spiritual."

Spurgeon continued, "I should have prayed that a fly might have alighted on his nose!"

Punishment by Proxy.

School Superintendent Maxwell often hears funny tales of woe from his corps of teachers, and this is the latest: An east side mother brought her little son for his first time to school last winter and said to the teacher, "This boy o' mine is very delicate, as he is afther a fit of harmonia on the loongs, but if he does anything bould, an' I know he will, bate the wan next to him, an' 'twill frighten him."—New York Times.

Prompter.

Mrs. Prunes—When do you actors at the theater draw your pay?

Boarder—I am not an actor at the theater, madam. I'm prompter there.

Mrs. Prunes—Well, you'll have to be prompter here, too, or find another boarding house.—Kansas City Journal.

Nothing Definite.

Her Mother—Mr. Sloman has been coming to see you for quite a long while, Maude. What are his intentions? Do you know? She—Well, I think he intends to keep on coming.

Had Tried Electricity.

A New York senator relates that he was riding in a car next to a motherly old lady, who asked him a question. He answered, but found the old lady very deaf. He repeated his answer in a shout, and conversation was thus established. "You are very deaf, aren't you, madam?" bellowed the senator.

"I am so," she replied, "and haven't been able to do a thing for it."

"Have you ever tried electricity?" asked the senator.

"Yes," she said, nodding vigorously. "I was struck by lightning last summer."

A Last Resort.

Little Boy—I want you to write me an excuse for being late to school yesterday. Jeweler—Eh? You are not my son. Little Boy—N-o, but mamma says I had plenty of time to get to school, so I guess the clock you sold her doesn't go right.

Queer.

Isn't it singular how much heroism is displayed by men in the discharge of a dangerous duty and how much cowardice by those who run into danger in the pursuit of pleasure?—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Yankee as Europe Knows Him.

"I was greatly amused," said a merchant who has lately made a visit abroad, "to notice how the term Yankee widens in application as one gets farther away from the habitat of the real thing.

"I met a very intelligent hotel keeper at Berne, in Switzerland, and in the course of conversation he remarked that he had an extremely agreeable countryman of mine staying at his house the previous season.

"'As you are both Yankees, you may by chance know him,' he said.

"'Where does he live?' I asked.

"'In Buenos Ayres,' replied the hotel keeper."—New York Press.

Suspicious Man.

"A man should have every confidence in his wife," said Mrs. Marriedlong, "and she in him. That is the only way that happiness can be secured."

"Yes," replied Mrs. Giribride, with tears in her eyes, "and that is just what Charley hasn't got. I wanted to try to shave him the other morning to save barber's bills, and he wouldn't even let me try!"—Cincinnati Times-Star.
